WORK SAMPLE PORTFOLIO

Annotated work sample portfolios are provided to support implementation of the Foundation – Year 10 Australian Curriculum.

Each portfolio is an example of evidence of student learning in relation to the achievement standard. Three portfolios are available for each achievement standard, illustrating satisfactory, above satisfactory and below satisfactory student achievement. The set of portfolios assists teachers to make on-balance judgements about the quality of their students’ achievement.

Each portfolio comprises a collection of students’ work drawn from a range of assessment tasks. There is no pre-determined number of student work samples in a portfolio, nor are they sequenced in any particular order. Each work sample in the portfolio may vary in terms of how much student time was involved in undertaking the task or the degree of support provided by the teacher. The portfolios comprise authentic samples of student work and may contain errors such as spelling mistakes and other inaccuracies. Opinions expressed in student work are those of the student.

The portfolios have been selected, annotated and reviewed by classroom teachers and other curriculum experts. The portfolios will be reviewed over time.

ACARA acknowledges the contribution of Australian teachers in the development of these work sample portfolios.

THIS PORTFOLIO: YEAR 7 ENGLISH

This portfolio provides the following student work samples:

Sample 1  Response to literature: Holes
Sample 2  Poem: Things I Know
Sample 3  Creative writing: Memories of school
Sample 4  Persuasive letter: From classic poems to favourite hits
Sample 5  Response to literature: Matilda
Sample 6  Response to literature: Black Snake
Sample 7  Oral presentation: Election speech
Sample 8  Persuasive text: Money
Sample 9  Poetry analysis: My Country
Sample 10  Discussion: The Highwayman
Sample 11  Discussion: The Hobbit

COPYRIGHT

Student work samples are not licensed under the creative commons license used for other material on the Australian Curriculum website. Instead, you may view, download, display, print, reproduce (such as by making photocopies) and distribute these materials in unaltered form only for your personal, non-commercial educational purposes or for the non-commercial educational purposes of your organisation, provided that you retain this copyright notice. For the avoidance of doubt, this means that you cannot edit, modify or adapt any of these materials and you cannot sub-license any of these materials to others. Apart from any uses permitted under the Copyright Act 1968 (Cth), and those explicitly granted above, all other rights are reserved by ACARA. For further information, refer to http://www.australiancurriculum.edu.au/Home/copyright.
This portfolio of student work includes a range of different types of texts that are structured and coherent, addressing a range of purposes, audiences and contexts. The student presents coherent and well-structured, persuasive texts linked to personal knowledge, and demonstrates analysis and a strong personal voice (WS4, WS5, WS6, WS8, WS9). In creative writing, including poetry, the student conveys personal sentiments in concise, simple yet powerful ways (WS1, WS2, WS3) and demonstrates clarity and control of language in a formal, oral presentation (WS7). Students develop their ideas about how language works through group discussions (WS10, WS11).
Response to literature: Holes

Year 7 English achievement standard

The parts of the achievement standard targeted in the assessment task are highlighted.

Receptive modes (listening, reading and viewing)

By the end of Year 7, students understand how text structures can influence the complexity of a text and are dependent on audience, purpose and context. They demonstrate understanding of how the choice of language features, images and vocabulary affects meaning.

Students explain issues and ideas from a variety of sources, analysing supporting evidence and implied meaning. They select specific details from texts to develop their own response, recognising that texts reflect different viewpoints. They listen for and explain different perspectives in texts.

Productive modes (speaking, writing and creating)

Students understand how the selection of a variety of language features can influence an audience. They understand how to draw on personal knowledge, textual analysis and other sources to express or challenge a point of view. They create texts showing how language features and images from other texts can be combined for effect.

Students create structured and coherent texts for a range of purposes and audiences. They make presentations and contribute actively to class and group discussions, using language features to engage the audience. When creating and editing texts they demonstrate understanding of grammar, use a variety of more specialised vocabulary, accurate spelling and punctuation.

Summary of task

The students read the text Holes by Louis Sacher. The students were asked to choose five tasks from a wider selection of tasks. The tasks were organised under the headings of ‘Knowing’, ‘Understanding’ and ‘Applying’.

The students completed the tasks over a two-week period.

The work samples included here are two of the tasks that a student completed:

- Task 1: Students chose a setting in the novel and wrote a description of it to help someone visualise it.
- Task 2: Students wrote a paragraph from the point of view of a plant, animal, landscape or inanimate object in the novel that commented on the main characters.
Response to literature: Holes

Annotations

- Understands elements of a literary text, for example, setting and point of view.

- Writes a personal response to the conditions that the boys endure at the lake.

- Uses effective noun groups to describe feelings, for example, ‘makes your mouth bone dry’.

- Uses repetition to convince the reader of the uncomfortable nature of the conditions.

- Writes in the second person to encourage the reader to empathise with the difficulties encountered in this harsh environment.

- Reflects on events in the novel.

- Changes the perspective from the people involved in the events to an inanimate object.

- Personifies the shovel and uses this device as an impartial observer of the action.

- Chooses action verbs to convey violence, for example, ‘smashes’, ‘crashing’, ‘sprinting away’.

---

TASK 1

Setting

There is no lake at Camp Green Lake. It is so scorching hot that it makes your mouth bone dry just like the hard, rocky, painful ground. It is so intense that you feel like you are going to pass out at any second. It is so hot that you get illusions of water from the rays of heat coming from the ground. Imagine every second of the day your skin burning and massive blisters all over your body especially your hands because of the heavy shovel digging into the surface which is as hard as a rock. That’s how Stanley Yelnats feels every day of his time at this horrible juvenile detention centre!

---

TASK 2

Point of view

I, the shovel see everything and hear everything! I hear the secrets, the lies, the queries and the fights. I see the torture, the pain, the sweat dripping of their faces but I also see the friendship that gets formed. I still remember the day that Zero had enough of camp green lake, Mr Pandanski yelling at him and people calling him stupid when really he is really intelligent and deserves a lot better. So then Zero goes not thinking and smashes me against Mr Pandanski’s face. I have his blood all over me, dripping of me in fact. After that all I remember is crunching onto the ground and seeing Zero sprint away as fast as he could.
Poem: Things I Know

Year 7 English achievement standard

The parts of the achievement standard targeted in the assessment task are highlighted.

Receptive modes (listening, reading and viewing)

By the end of Year 7, students understand how text structures can influence the complexity of a text and are dependent on audience, purpose and context. They demonstrate understanding of how the choice of language features, images and vocabulary affects meaning.

Students explain issues and ideas from a variety of sources, analysing supporting evidence and implied meaning. They select specific details from texts to develop their own response, recognising that texts reflect different viewpoints. They listen for and explain different perspectives in texts.

Productive modes (speaking, writing and creating)

Students understand how the selection of a variety of language features can influence an audience. They understand how to draw on personal knowledge, textual analysis and other sources to express or challenge a point of view. They create texts showing how language features and images from other texts can be combined for effect.

Students create structured and coherent texts for a range of purposes and audiences. They make presentations and contribute actively to class and group discussions, using language features to engage the audience. When creating and editing texts they demonstrate understanding of grammar, use a variety of more specialised vocabulary, accurate spelling and punctuation.

Summary of task

Students from different countries, backgrounds, lifestyles and cultures were invited to share what they know about their lives. The students joined a collaborative project that utilised an online learning circle. This learning circle used social networking tools to manage collaborative work across a number of school sites.

The students were asked to respond to the poem Things I Know by Joyce Sutphen and write a poem in a similar style.

The students were provided with the following prompts:

- We are all different. We have varied experiences as we live our lives in drastically different parts of the world. We can learn a great deal about each other and the world if we share our experiences together in poetic form.
- What do you know?
- What experiences have you had that are so different from mine?
Poem: Things I Know

Annotations

Plans elements to be included in the poem, focusing on the senses and specific language choices that create imagery.

Organises ideas to improve structure.
Poem: Things I Know

Evenings at the Beach

I know how the waves glisten whilst lapping away at the golden sand; I know the look of the fire-patterned rocks as they hang over us; how minute by minute the sun etches closer to the horizon, reflecting the sea.

The feeling of the lead tugging me over to the friends awaiting her and how their wet fur brushes against my legs leaving sandy remains, only to run away, break the water and swim against fighting currents- I know that too.

How the salty whips my hair across my face and lingers on my skin. I know how the sand crunches below my feet and I see hers do the same. How the prints follow and twist and turn, to paddle in the water and relax on the sand.

Annotations

Uses personification to capture the reader’s attention, for example, ‘the waves glisten whilst lapping away at the golden sand’.

Selects words often associated with beaches, for example, ‘waves glisten’, ‘golden sand’, ‘sparkling sea’.

Makes some word choices that create effective description, for example, ‘the look of fire-patterned rocks as they hang over us’.

Uses repetition for emphasis, for example, ‘minute by minute the sun etches closer to the horizon’.

Uses detail to describe the experience of walking a dog along a beach at sunset.

Appeals to the reader’s senses, for example, ‘how the salty [air] whips my hair across my face’, ‘the sand crunches below my feet’.

Organises ideas into an appropriate form.
Creative writing: Memories of school

Year 7 English achievement standard

The parts of the achievement standard targeted in the assessment task are highlighted.

Receptive modes (listening, reading and viewing)

By the end of Year 7, students understand how text structures can influence the complexity of a text and are dependent on audience, purpose and context. They demonstrate understanding of how the choice of language features, images and vocabulary affects meaning.

Students explain issues and ideas from a variety of sources, analysing supporting evidence and implied meaning. They select specific details from texts to develop their own response, recognising that texts reflect different viewpoints. They listen for and explain different perspectives in texts.

Productive modes (speaking, writing and creating)

Students understand how the selection of a variety of language features can influence an audience. They understand how to draw on personal knowledge, textual analysis and other sources to express or challenge a point of view. They create texts showing how language features and images from other texts can be combined for effect.

Students create structured and coherent texts for a range of purposes and audiences. They make presentations and contribute actively to class and group discussions, using language features to engage the audience. When creating and editing texts they demonstrate understanding of grammar, use a variety of more specialised vocabulary, accurate spelling and punctuation.

Summary of task

The students were asked to write about an experience that occurred at school. Students were provided with the following prompts as suggestions:

Describing the incident:
- Who was involved?
- How would you describe the people?
- Describe how the surroundings appeared to you at the time.
- What exactly happened? Why was it memorable?

Describing how you felt:
- How did you feel at the time?
- How do you feel about it now?
- Remember, a personal incident is not just a story about something that happened. It is a reflection on how a past incident played a specific role in shaping who a person has become.

Students were given two 50-minute sessions to plan and draft their piece. They conferenced their draft with their teacher but completed the published copy at home. They had one week to complete the task.
Creative writing: Memories of school

Annotations

Orients the reader with an evocative beginning sentence, for example, ‘I peeped...’.

Uses direct speech to create tension, for example, ‘Everyone, ten minutes to go!’, ‘It’s time’.

Uses noun group/phrases to describe the actor’s costumes, for example, ‘a khaki coloured shirt’, ‘buttons in a straight line’, ‘my large, feathery blue hat’.

Uses some effective language to describe a character’s feeling of calm with an underlying suggestion of apprehension, for example, ‘She looked calm, her short black hair still in place and her nails relatively long’.

Expresses feelings using imagery, for example, ‘told the butterflies in my stomach to leave’.

Uses paragraphs to separate different stages in the text.

Writes a clear sequence of events.

Resolves the tension in the last paragraph, for example, ‘I now knew everything was going to be fine’.

The Production

I peeped through the thick, black curtain one last time. The gym was filled with parents, siblings and any other person that knew a student that went to our school. It was still hot outside, the air was sticky with humidity. As I peeked, my anxiety faded a little. ‘Every one, ten minutes to go!’ That was Mr Edinham, he was organising the production. ‘Check your make-up!’, he shouted. I closed the small crack I had made in the curtains and went to the closest mirror. I still looked like a goose, not at all what I was meant to look like a goose. I was another goose.

Everything went silent and dark. As I took motion I can hardly distinguish my previous self was there, she didn’t look nervous although it’s hard to talk with her. She wore a khaki coloured shirt, buttons in a straight line to the top, her skirt had a pocket on the top left of her skirt which held a note pad, this was a prop for her character. She had black and brown painted all over her face, supposedly made using mud. Marion wore long green dress and blue hat. Her face was neutral.

‘It’s time!’ Mr Edinham whispered, she looked calm, her short black hair still in place and her nails relatively long. With a good sense to surprise me, she didn’t have to go and picture in front of everyone. She remained seated for a second then told the butterflies in my stomach, to leave. I looked in the mirror, one final time. My hair was bracketed on the side, my large feathered hat had remained in place, still wore a long green shirt reaching my feet, I was OK.

As the audience cheered, I made my way into my position. All my friends with major characters sat looked the same, they were all black shirts and red and blue shirts of all different shades. They were all in position, my heart thumped a beat as the crowd reacted. Suddenly the curtains opened widely, leaving me to see everyone in plastic chairs, all placed in straight rows. I took a deep breath and started out my lines. I now knew that everything was going to be fine. The school musical was underway.
Persuasive letter: From classic poems to favourite hits

Year 7 English achievement standard

The parts of the achievement standard targeted in the assessment task are highlighted.

Receptive modes (listening, reading and viewing)

By the end of Year 7, students understand how text structures can influence the complexity of a text and are dependent on audience, purpose and context. They demonstrate understanding of how the choice of language features, images and vocabulary affects meaning.

Students explain issues and ideas from a variety of sources, analysing supporting evidence and implied meaning. They select specific details from texts to develop their own response, recognising that texts reflect different viewpoints. They listen for and explain different perspectives in texts.

Productive modes (speaking, writing and creating)

Students understand how the selection of a variety of language features can influence an audience. They understand how to draw on personal knowledge, textual analysis and other sources to express or challenge a point of view. They create texts showing how language features and images from other texts can be combined for effect.

Students create structured and coherent texts for a range of purposes and audiences. They make presentations and contribute actively to class and group discussions, using language features to engage the audience. When creating and editing texts they demonstrate understanding of grammar, use a variety of more specialised vocabulary, accurate spelling and punctuation.

Summary of task

The students selected a poem from a poetry anthology. They then copied and analysed the poem using the ‘SMILE’ framework. The anagram SMILE represents elements to be considered: Subject, Mood (and Movement), Imagery, Language and Evaluation.

The students were then asked to write a letter to their favourite singer or band convincing them to set a classic poem to music. Students referred to their analysis of the chosen poem to support their argument.
Persuasive letter: From classic poems to favourite hits

Dear Birdy,

My name is [Student's name removed] and I've always been a fan of your singles and music. It's hard to believe you're only 16!

I've been scanning through some much-loved poems and came across a ballad called "The Orphan" which is written by an anonymous Chinese girl. I think it would be perfect to set into a great song of yours.

This poem/ballad is about an orphan's life back in the 1930's. It is set from her point of view and describes her happy past before her parents died and her sad, rejected present.

Because your singing and composing style is alternative, slow and moving and the mood and movement of this ballad is also slow and moving with it's story, the match is completely perfect!

There is a whole lot of strong imagery in this poem, which is very understandable, seeing as it is set as a story. You imagine images of heavy crying, like when it says "my tears fell like rain".

Annotations

Plans, drafts and publishes a persuasive text that demonstrates a good understanding of the audience and purpose.

Recognises the perspective from which the poem is written.

Summarises issues mentioned in the poem and makes straightforward inferences about the protagonist's feelings, for example, 'sad, rejected present'.

Uses some specialised vocabulary, for example, 'composing style'.
You also imagine carriages and mostly the despairing life of an orphan.

The language is highly descriptive and is - in some sections - old fashioned; which isn't surprising seeing as it was written back in the 1930's, but the ballad is still understandable.

For the sake of the song, some of the words could be changed to make it more modern, for example: 'parlour' is an old fashioned word for 'sitting room' or 'lounge', so there is a possibility to change it to either one.

It comes to the end of my letter, so in conclusion, I think this ballad will be brilliant for you to compose and sing. This song - if made - will be added to the other numerous amount of moving and inspirational songs you own.

For me, this ballad is one I certainly won't forget and soon, it maybe a song listeners wouldn't forget.

Yours sincerely
Response to film: Matilda

Year 7 English achievement standard

The parts of the achievement standard targeted in the assessment task are highlighted.

Receptive modes (listening, reading and viewing)

By the end of Year 7, students understand how text structures can influence the complexity of a text and are dependent on audience, purpose and context. They demonstrate understanding of how the choice of language features, images and vocabulary affects meaning.

Students explain issues and ideas from a variety of sources, analysing supporting evidence and implied meaning. They select specific details from texts to develop their own response, recognising that texts reflect different viewpoints. They listen for and explain different perspectives in texts.

Productive modes (speaking, writing and creating)

Students understand how the selection of a variety of language features can influence an audience. They understand how to draw on personal knowledge, textual analysis and other sources to express or challenge a point of view. They create texts showing how language features and images from other texts can be combined for effect.

Students create structured and coherent texts for a range of purposes and audiences. They make presentations and contribute actively to class and group discussions, using language features to engage the audience. When creating and editing texts they demonstrate understanding of grammar, use a variety of more specialised vocabulary, accurate spelling and punctuation.

Summary of task

Students were asked to write an essay under supervised conditions in response to the following question:

What techniques has the director of the film Matilda used to let the viewer know Miss Honey is a ‘goodie’ and Miss Trunchbull is a ‘baddie’?

Students were able to use notes and were also provided with scaffolding guidelines about essay structure and content including theme, main characters and film techniques.
Response to film: Matilda

The movie Matilda is a hilarious family comedy movie directed by Danny DeVito, based on the classic written by Roahl Dahl. It is about a little girl called Matilda who is determined to teach her evil parents and principal a lesson. And of course, she had help from her lovely teacher, Miss Honey.

Miss Honey is the good person in Matilda. We see the through both her appearance and her personality. Miss Honey is always smiling at her students. She is a very attractive person who is enjoyable to be around. She wears very pretty floral dresses, flat shoes and beautiful necklaces. Miss Honey is a very calm, peaceful and understanding person and tries to make learning fun for the kids. Like when she taught them a poem to help them spell difficulty.

The director has used many techniques to point out that Miss Honey is a good person. For instance, he has used bright but soft lighting.

Annotations

Establishes a personal response to the text.

Uses a clear structure, providing an introduction, body and conclusion.

Uses straightforward evaluative language to introduce and describe a main character, for example, language used to introduce and describe Miss Honey compared with the language used to describe Miss Trunchbull.

Uses evidence from the text that demonstrates how choices of images influence audience response.

Uses specialised language appropriate to a film review, for example, ‘techniques’, ‘soft lighting’.

Identifies and explains film techniques used to represent character, adding detail from the text to support the interpretation.
Response to film: Matilda

Ms Trunchbull is definitely the “bad person in Matilda. Her appearance and aggressive person who hates children. She dresses in very military styled clothes. These include big buckled belts, black boots, socks the come up to her knees and a big, black coat. She always has her hair tied back in a bun very tightly.

The reason it is obvious that Ms Trunchbull is the “baddie” is because of the techniques the director has used. These include features like dull lighting, the low angle shots when she looks down at her students and her music. One of the scenes where the music has created suspense was the scene where Ms Trunchbull was walking down the hall way to see who was in her house.

I think these techniques really worked. Right from the first scene where I saw Miss Honey I knew that she was a “goodie.” This was because in the first scene she was gently carefully untangling Amber’s hair. The music, lighting, shots and angles all really helped show that Miss Honey was the good and that Ms Trunchbull was the “baddie.”

Annotations

- Demonstrates evidence of editing for effect.
- Uses comparison of visual elements provided by the costumes of characters to reinforce the point being made about the main characters.
- Writes expanded sentence structure accurately, including some with embedded clauses, for example ‘The reason it is obvious that Miss Trunchbull is the “baddie” is because of the techniques the director has used’.
- Creates cohesion through the use of topic sentences to signal the focus of each paragraph.
- Maintains a consistent line of argument, giving generalised examples of technical elements such as lighting and camera angles.
- Expresses and justifies own opinion.
- Conclusion reinforces a consistent line of argument.
Response to literature: Black Snake

Year 7 English achievement standard

The parts of the achievement standard targeted in the assessment task are highlighted.

Receptive modes (listening, reading and viewing)

By the end of Year 7, students understand how text structures can influence the complexity of a text and are dependent on audience, purpose and context. They demonstrate understanding of how the choice of language features, images and vocabulary affects meaning.

Students explain issues and ideas from a variety of sources, analysing supporting evidence and implied meaning. They select specific details from texts to develop their own response, recognising that texts reflect different viewpoints. They listen for and explain different perspectives in texts.

Productive modes (speaking, writing and creating)

Students understand how the selection of a variety of language features can influence an audience. They understand how to draw on personal knowledge, textual analysis and other sources to express or challenge a point of view. They create texts showing how language features and images from other texts can be combined for effect.

Students create structured and coherent texts for a range of purposes and audiences. They make presentations and contribute actively to class and group discussions, using language features to engage the audience. When creating and editing texts they demonstrate understanding of grammar, use a variety of more specialised vocabulary, accurate spelling and punctuation.

Summary of task

Students were asked to complete the following activities in preparation for the task:

- Read Carole Wilkinson’s Black Snake.
- Discuss the various ways Ned Kelly is represented through the novel and complete a character profile of him.
- Compare various representations of Ned Kelly from imaginative and historical texts and identify the representation of Ned Kelly in each source.

Students were then asked to write a response to the question:

‘Was Ned Kelly a villain? Support your opinion with evidence.’

This task was completed under supervised conditions and students were given 40 minutes.
Response to literature: Black Snake

Annotations

States both sides of the argument to guide the reader into the debate.

Attempts to present the complexity of the issue.

Uses a topic sentence to signal that one side of the argument is to be presented.

Uses vocabulary to persuade and develop character, for example, ‘despite the evidence’, ‘ruthless bushranger’, ‘downright villain’.

Uses some detail from the text to support point of view.

Cites opposing view and challenges it.

Uses a variety of sentence structures including embedded clauses to contribute additional information.
Response to literature: Black Snake

Annotations

- Introduces an alternative point of view.
- Uses evidence from the text to support and further develop point of view.
- Shows some understanding of structure, for example, using paragraphs.
Response to literature: Black Snake

Annotations

- Links ideas to the developing line of argument.
- Comes to a position in relation to the topic.

Annotations (Overview)

The work sample demonstrates understanding of the topic and develops a line of argument in relation to the topic. Evidence is used to support the discussion.
Oral presentation: Election speech

Year 7 English achievement standard

The parts of the achievement standard targeted in the assessment task are highlighted.

Receptive modes (listening, reading and viewing)

By the end of Year 7, students understand how text structures can influence the complexity of a text and are dependent on audience, purpose and context. They demonstrate understanding of how the choice of language features, images and vocabulary affects meaning.

Students explain issues and ideas from a variety of sources, analysing supporting evidence and implied meaning. They select specific details from texts to develop their own response, recognising that texts reflect different viewpoints. They listen for and explain different perspectives in texts.

Productive modes (speaking, writing and creating)

Students understand how the selection of a variety of language features can influence an audience. They understand how to draw on personal knowledge, textual analysis and other sources to express or challenge a point of view. They create texts showing how language features and images from other texts can be combined for effect.

Students create structured and coherent texts for a range of purposes and audiences. They make presentations and contribute actively to class and group discussions, using language features to engage the audience. When creating and editing texts they demonstrate understanding of grammar, use a variety of more specialised vocabulary, accurate spelling and punctuation.

Summary of task

Students were asked to make a one-minute presentation to their peers explaining why they should be voted house captain. They were given time in class to work on their presentation and received feedback from the teacher and their peers in rehearsals. They completed the task over the course of a week.
Oral presentation: Election speech

Annotations
Persuasive text: Money

Year 7 English achievement standard

The parts of the achievement standard targeted in the assessment task are highlighted.

Receptive modes (listening, reading and viewing)

By the end of Year 7, students understand how text structures can influence the complexity of a text and are dependent on audience, purpose and context. They demonstrate understanding of how the choice of language features, images and vocabulary affects meaning.

Students explain issues and ideas from a variety of sources, analysing supporting evidence and implied meaning. They select specific details from texts to develop their own response, recognising that texts reflect different viewpoints. They listen for and explain different perspectives in texts.

Productive modes (speaking, writing and creating)

Students understand how the selection of a variety of language features can influence an audience. They understand how to draw on personal knowledge, textual analysis and other sources to express or challenge a point of view. They create texts showing how language features and images from other texts can be combined for effect.

Students create structured and coherent texts for a range of purposes and audiences. They make presentations and contribute actively to class and group discussions, using language features to engage the audience. When creating and editing texts they demonstrate understanding of grammar, use a variety of more specialised vocabulary, accurate spelling and punctuation.

Summary of task

Students were provided with a range of stimulus material and asked to write an argumentative essay on the topic ‘Too much money is being spent on games and toys’.

Students were provided with guidelines for writing an argumentative essay and model.

Students completed the task in class over two lessons.
Persuasive text: Money

I strongly believe that too much money is being spent on games and toys and that people should learn some self-restraint.

Firstly, children are now asking for just about anything that they see on television that they like the look of. For example, when the clever advertising companies show their toys and games being used by children on the television that appear to be having the time of their lives, the children watching the advertisement at home immediately want that particular product. What’s more is that the children have found out how to get exactly what they want. With enough begging and pleading, parents will eventually come up with some sort of deal that enables the children to get what they want, or they will just buy it for them straight up.

My second reason that I believe that too much money is spent on toys and games is that people are impulsively buying the latest funky gadgets and games that they do not stop to think that maybe the money they are spending could be saved or spent on something more important. Such as bills, future desperate medicine costs, doctor and hospital visits, unexpected life costs that pop up every day. There is even health and life

Annotations

Expresses a clear and direct personal viewpoint, for example, achieving emphasis through the use of adverbs.

Uses paragraph openers to structure the argument, for example, ‘Firstly’, ‘My second reason’, ‘Finally’.

Provides supporting examples to reinforce point of view, for example, the use of cause and effect in complex sentences.

Uses vocabulary to persuade, for example, ‘self-restraint’, ‘begging and pleading’, ‘impulsively buying’ and ‘unexpected life costs’.

Repeats main contention to ensure a consistent line of argument.
Persuasive text: Money

cover to think about. And then there is the option of charity, giving to someone much less fortunate than yourself is a much better way to spend your money than on fancy gizmos and gadgets.

Finally, people need to learn some self-restraint, they are just running out to the shops the minute they see the latest toy on television. They don’t even stop to think anymore.

To sum up, too much money is spent on toys and games when it could instead be spent on much more important things.

Annotations

Uses connectives to progress the argument at the beginning of paragraphs.

Provides a concise conclusion by re-stating the main contention.
Poetry analysis: My Country

Year 7 English achievement standard

The parts of the achievement standard targeted in the assessment task are highlighted.

Receptive modes (listening, reading and viewing)

By the end of Year 7, students understand how text structures can influence the complexity of a text and are dependent on audience, purpose and context. They demonstrate understanding of how the choice of language features, images and vocabulary affects meaning.

Students explain issues and ideas from a variety of sources, analysing supporting evidence and implied meaning. They select specific details from texts to develop their own response, recognising that texts reflect different viewpoints. They listen for and explain different perspectives in texts.

Productive modes (speaking, writing and creating)

Students understand how the selection of a variety of language features can influence an audience. They understand how to draw on personal knowledge, textual analysis and other sources to express or challenge a point of view. They create texts showing how language features and images from other texts can be combined for effect.

Students create structured and coherent texts for a range of purposes and audiences. They make presentations and contribute actively to class and group discussions, using language features to engage the audience. When creating and editing texts they demonstrate understanding of grammar, use a variety of more specialised vocabulary, accurate spelling and punctuation.

Summary of task

This task was part of a unit on poetry that was conducted over one term. In this unit, students were given the opportunity to engage with a variety of poems for enjoyment. They listened to, performed and composed a range of spoken, written and multimodal poems. Students explored a range of structural forms and language techniques to understand how poets use these devices to create meaning. They were exposed to poems which reflected different historical and cultural viewpoints. Students worked independently and in groups to create and perform a variety of poems for particular audiences and purposes, reflecting their understanding of the skills and knowledge taught in this unit. By the end of the unit, students were given the opportunity to consider the relevance of poetry to contemporary Australian society.
Poetry analysis: My Country

The most effective "My Country" poem is the original by Dorothy Macellars. The way she has used particular language is quite romantic and passionate, also the language she's used is closer and more familiar than anything else in the 21st century would use today. The poem states all through that Dorothy takes her country no matter what state it's in. The tone she uses is also generally extremely happy.

Dorothy Macellars poem is quite romantic and it contains some of the great love that she has for her country. As much as she could put down in words for example, on lines 2, 3, and 5, she uses the phrase "I love" a lot also in stanzas 11 and 13. She uses the phrase "Care of my heart, my country" which clearly explains that she is really close to her country, Australia.

The language she's used is closer than anything else would use today. For instance, stanza 14 "All you who have not loved her, you will not understand, though earth holds many splendid places, wherever I may she I know the black brown country, My homeland thoughts will fly," the tone of this poem is happy and although sometimes there are desperate parts, for example in stanza 1, there is the phrase "A care of my heart, My Country! the pitless blue sky, When sick at heart abroad I see the cattle, the cattle, But then the shadows grey clouds gather, and we can bliss.

Annotations

Establishes a clear thesis.

Chooses specific evidence from different parts of the poem to support the interpretation.
Poetry analysis: My Country

Annotations

- Uses extensive quotations from the poem.
- Restates the thesis, with some refinement.
Poetry analysis: My Country

The most effective "My Country" poem is the original by Dorothea Mackellar. The ironic version of "My Country" by Oscar Kranvohl is effective, but it's not the most effective in terms of supporting his country. Whereas Mackellar has used words that make her poem more romantic and it really sounds like she's passionate about her country and nothing can come between her and her country. The language is also an older style than anything the people of the 21st Century would use. All through Mackellar's poem it states that she thoroughly loves her country no matter what state it's in. The tone she uses is also relatively happy although at times life in "This sunburnt land of mine" is a little hard.

Mackellar's poem is very romantic and it contains some of the great love that she has for her country, as much as she could put down in words, really. For example, in stanza two, she uses the words "I love" a lot. Also, in Stanzas four and five, lines 25 and 33, she uses the phrase "Core of my heart, my country!" This clearly explains that she is very close to her country, Australia.

Annotations

Edits to make expression more formal.
Poetry analysis: My Country

The language Mackellar uses in her poem is very olden and like nothing that Australians would use today. For instance, in stanza 6 "All you who have not loved her, you will not understand — Though earth holds many splendours, wherever I may die I know to what brown country, my homing thoughts will fly." This assists Mackellar’s poem in being more efficient than Kranvohi’s because it’s also an element in her great passion and love for her country. Basically, what she’s saying is even when I’m gone I know where I’ll be remembered and where my thoughts of my country will stay.

The tone of Mackellar’s poem is happy although at times there are desperate parts. An example of this is the whole of stanza four:

“Core of my heart, my country!
Her pitiless blue sky,
When sick at heart, around us,
We see the cattle die —
But then the grey clouds gather,
And we can bless again
The drumming of an army,
The steady, soaking rain.”

She says it really precisely in stanza five, when she states “For flood and fire and famine, she pays us back three fold.” These quotes make Mackellar’s poem the more effective poem because; it sets a certain image in the imagination of the reader.

Annotations

Sets out quotation correctly.
Poetry analysis: My Country

The imagery that is used is really exquisite. Just imagine a picture to the words: “A land of sweeping pains, of ragged mountain ranges of droughts and flooding rains. I love her far horizons, I love her jewel-sea her beauty and her terror – The wide brown land for me!” The images that just pop into the front of the mind as you read are beautiful. Just like “A stark white ring-barked forest all tragic to the moon, the sapphire-misted mountains the hot gold hush of noon. Green tangle of the brushes where little lianas coil, and orchids deck the tree-tops and fems the warm dark soil.”

The rhyming Mackellar’s used is efficiently eye-grabbing. There is no formal rhyme scheme but every second line rhymes. It is thoroughly enjoyable to read.

Mackellar sugar coats some of Australia’s characteristics with metaphors and beautiful imagery. Like “Sapphire-misted mountains” and “The drumming of and army, the steady, soaking rain. Sugar coating these points/characteristics, adds a certain depth to the poem that makes it more enjoyable to read.

Therefore, between “My Country” By Dorothea Mackellar and “My Country” by Oscar Kranvohl, Mackellar’s poem is truly the more effective poem. It shines and shows off Australia’s positives. Even if some of them ARE a little sugar coated. Nowadays, Australia needs a little sugar-coating.

Annotations

Responds personally to the poem.

Recognises the use of imagery and some poetic techniques including rhyme and metaphor.
Discussion: The Highwayman

Year 7 English achievement standard

The parts of the achievement standard targeted in the assessment task are highlighted.

Receptive modes (listening, reading and viewing)

> By the end of Year 7, students understand how text structures can influence the complexity of a text and are dependent on audience, purpose and context. They demonstrate understanding of how the choice of language features, images and vocabulary affects meaning.

> Students explain issues and ideas from a variety of sources, analysing supporting evidence and implied meaning. They select specific details from texts to develop their own response, recognising that texts reflect different viewpoints. They listen for and explain different perspectives in texts.

Productive modes (speaking, writing and creating)

> Students understand how the selection of a variety of language features can influence an audience. They understand how to draw on personal knowledge, textual analysis and other sources to express or challenge a point of view. They create texts showing how language features and images from other texts can be combined for effect.

> Students create structured and coherent texts for a range of purposes and audiences. They make presentations and contribute actively to class and group discussions, using language features to engage the audience. When creating and editing texts they demonstrate understanding of grammar, use a variety of more specialised vocabulary, accurate spelling and punctuation.

Summary of task

Students listened to a reading of the ballad The Highwayman by Alfred Noyes whilst viewing images from the book projected onto a screen.

- To contextualise the poem’s title character, students were asked if they knew what a ‘highwayman’ was and during which time period they were most common.
- General first impressions were garnered from students as a whole class and any questions were clarified (such as, “What is an ostler?” and “Were the ‘red troops’ the police?”).
- Students were then given their own hardcopy of the complete poem to read for themselves and to highlight their favourite line/phrase, annotating it with the reason behind their choice.
Discussion: The Highwayman

The following questions were posed:

1. From which perspective is this poem told – first-person, second-person or third-person perspective?
   - How do you know?
   - Do you think this is the most effective perspective for this poem? Why do you think this?
   - What would change if the perspective was different?

2. With which character(s) do you think the poet wants us to sympathise?
   - How can you tell? (Refer to specific examples from the poem.)

3. What do you think of Tim the ostler? Why do you think he acted as he did?

Students then moved into small groups to share and discuss their responses, ensuring each person in the group contributed at least once.
Discussion: The Highwayman
Discussion: The Hobbit

Year 7 English achievement standard

The parts of the achievement standard targeted in the assessment task are highlighted.

Receptive modes (listening, reading and viewing)

By the end of Year 7, students understand how text structures can influence the complexity of a text and are dependent on audience, purpose and context. They demonstrate understanding of how the choice of language features, images and vocabulary affects meaning.

Students explain issues and ideas from a variety of sources, analysing supporting evidence and implied meaning. They select specific details from texts to develop their own response, recognising that texts reflect different viewpoints. They listen for and explain different perspectives in texts.

Productive modes (speaking, writing and creating)

Students understand how the selection of a variety of language features can influence an audience. They understand how to draw on personal knowledge, textual analysis and other sources to express or challenge a point of view. They create texts showing how language features and images from other texts can be combined for effect.

Students create structured and coherent texts for a range of purposes and audiences. They make presentations and contribute actively to class and group discussions, using language features to engage the audience. When creating and editing texts they demonstrate understanding of grammar, use a variety of more specialised vocabulary, accurate spelling and punctuation.

Summary of task

This activity was part of a unit of work on The Hobbit by J.R.R. Tolkien. In this lesson, students had an opportunity to explore thematic ideas from the book.

In preparation, students were asked to research a real-world example of a group of people who are similar to a group in The Hobbit, for example, refugees/displaced people, original inhabitants in countries that have been colonised.

Working in groups, they conducted a carousel task where they explained their example to others. In their group, the students asked questions to assess the relevance of the chosen example and its relationship with the character from the text and their experiences. This activity took place within a double lesson (80 minutes).
Discussion: The Hobbit

Annotations