THE SCHEDULE - CONTRACT DETAILS

1. Proposal

   ^To be completed following selection of the preferred Tenderer^

2. Services

   (see clause 2.1.1.a)

   2.1. Introduction

   The Australian Curriculum, Assessment and Reporting Authority (ACARA) is responsible for the development of rigorous, world-class Australian curriculum from Foundation to Year 12.

   To complement the development of an Australian curriculum, ACARA is also responsible for developing and administering a national assessment program aligned to the national curriculum that measures students’ progress, and the provision of information, resources, support and guidance to the teaching profession.

   ACARA reports to, and is directed by the Education Council (previously known as the Standing Council on School Education and Early Childhood).

   ACARA has overall responsibility for implementing the National Assessment Program (NAP).

2.2. Background

   2.2.1 National Assessment Program – Literacy and Numeracy

   The National Assessment Program — Literacy and Numeracy (NAPLAN) is the main assessment program conducted by ACARA. Every year all Australian students in Years 3, 5, 7 and 9 are assessed in Reading, Writing, Language Conventions and Numeracy. The tests are equated longitudinally each year in order to ensure comparability of results from year to year, and to enable tracking of students’ results.

   NAPLAN tests will be delivered online beginning in 2017 with all students online by 2019.

   2.2.2 NAPLAN Online R&D: Device Effect Study 2015

   ACARA has developed a comprehensive research agenda that will provide findings on a range of issues and provide evidence that support the transition of NAPLAN from a pen-and-paper test to a computer-based assessment.

   The main purpose of the device effect study is to investigate the magnitude of measurement invariance when NAPLAN is delivered across devices, and to identify whether there are variances specific to domains. Outcomes of this study will have consequences for measurement, policy and communications.

   ACARA will conduct this study in two phases: first, focusing on the measurement invariance of items and testlets and the interaction of students with NAPLAN items in different domains in 2015, and second, in a follow-up study to be conducted in 2016 (when the assessment delivery system that supports the tailored test design will be available) to investigate the device mode effect in context of adaptive testing focusing on the invariance of student performance.

   This specification relates to the 2015 Phase 1 study only.
In the 2015 phase of the device effect study, ACARA will investigate performance of numeracy, reading, spelling, and writing items delivered across a range of devices in approximately 36 primary and 36 secondary schools across Australia. In addition to quantitative item performance data, systematic observation and structured interview methods will be used to collect qualitative data on the interaction and engagement of students with online tests delivered on different devices.

2.3 Purpose
The purpose of this Contract is to engage a qualified and experienced Contractor to:
- conduct a review of current literature and findings regarding the impact of test devices, particularly laptops and tablets (with and without detachable keyboards) on the performance of tests and students;
- provide test administration and invigilation of the Device Effect Study in a sample of schools across Australia;
- conduct systematic observation and structured interviews in the designed subset of sampled schools.

2.4 Work to be undertaken by other contractors
To support the delivery of the 2015 Device Effect Study, ACARA will release multiple tenders for specific components related to the study. The provision of an online computer system for test/testlet construction and review, and test delivery to support the overall delivery of the Device Effect Study will be managed under a separate contract (Test Delivery System Contractor).

The Contractor will be required to liaise with the Test Delivery System Contractor. Key points of contact will include:
- creating school, student and invigilation user accounts in advance of the study;
- constructing testlets/tests in the system;
- assigning tests as per the plan to schools and students;
- provision of technical support by the Test Delivery Contractor during administration of the tests;
- ensuring that access to data for marking purposes is provided and in an appropriate format.

2.5 Scope of project
The successful Contractor will be required to:
- provide a risk management and test security plan
- conduct a literature review prior to the field trial
- provide a test session implementation plan which details quality assurance measures that will be taken to ensure that tests will be administered as planned
- develop a test administration manual to ensure all invigilators are fully aware of their responsibilities
- liaise with schools to finalise classes and students that will be tested and scheduling of test sessions
• provide a testing schedule which details the dates and times that schools will be conducting the testing for each domain
• liaise with schools to ensure that schools participating in the study have IT infrastructure that meets the minimum specifications
• in collaboration with the Test Delivery System Contractor, prepare student and school identities in the test delivery system
• in collaboration with the Test Delivery System Contractor, assign tests as per the plan to schools and students
• develop protocols for systematic observations and structured interviews that will be used to collect qualitative information regarding student engagement and interaction with test items across the range of devices
• develop and administer a survey to investigate students’ familiarity and experience with specific devices
• train and assign invigilators
• conduct the test, interviews and survey in schools
• collect and analyse qualitative data
• integrate outcomes of psychometric analyses of item and testlet performance, which will be provided by ACARA, into the research summaries and report
• provide research reports and summaries for internal and external audiences as specified by ACARA
• in collaboration with ACARA, coordinate communications to schools
• provide a phone and email help desk for no less than four weeks duration to resolve issues that may arise during the conduct of the testing
• outline a plan to provide feedback regarding contractual, financial and day-to-day-management aspects of the project and measurement issues, including a project close-out meeting
• provide progress reports and consult regularly with ACARA.

Role of the Contractor

The Contractor will be responsible for implementing the project objectives.

The Contractor is expected to work in close collaboration with ACARA’s Project Manager at all stages of the project to ensure that the procedures and methodologies are consistent with the technical standards for the Education Council’s national assessments and ACARA’s assessment protocols, and that the project deliverables and timelines are met. The Contractor’s Project Director will report to ACARA’s Project Manager on the basis agreed between ACARA and the Contractor in the project plan.

The Contractor will be required to:

2.5.1 Conduct a literature review

The contractor will be required to conduct and report on a literature review regarding the impact of test device, especially laptops and tablets (with and without detachable keyboards) on performance of items and students in online assessments. A further purpose of the literature review is to guide and support development of the protocols for the systematic observations and structured interviews.
2.5.2 Prepare for the delivery of computer based assessments in schools

The test will consist of four testlets by combining sets of two testlets from numeracy, reading or spelling domains. The order of domains will be rotated to create the three test forms: (i) numeracy and reading, (ii) reading and spelling, (iii) spelling and numeracy.

In addition some students will complete writing tasks in a separate test session. At each year level, two writing (one narrative and one persuasive) year-level specific tasks will be used in the study.

All testlets that will be used in the study will be specified by ACARA's test managers. The Contractor is required to construct the required test forms in the Assessment Delivery System and to conduct the user acceptance testing for all constructed test forms.

The Contractor will be required to ensure that sampled schools have IT infrastructure that meets the specifications provided by the Test Delivery System Contractor. The Contractor will administer a Technical Readiness Test in all sampled schools. The Technical Readiness Test can be provided to schools to complete independently. Information and support materials regarding the Technical Readiness Test will be coordinated by the Contractor in collaboration with ACARA and the Test Delivery System Contractor. The platform for the Technical Readiness Test will be provided by the Test Delivery System Contractor.

The Contractor is required to create student and school profiles within the test delivery system and assign the correct test sessions to each school. The Contractor will be required to create student identities and register students on the system before administering the tests. This will require that the Contractor has liaised with the school sufficiently in advance of the test day (as agreed with ACARA) so that he/she has the required student details for registration.

The Test Delivery System Contractor will provide training on the system for a limited number of invigilators appointed by the Contractor. The Contractor will then be responsible for the training of additional invigilators (i.e., ‘train the trainer’ model),

A test administration manual will be developed by the Contractor to ensure all invigilators are fully aware of their responsibilities.

The Contractor will work with ACARA to coordinate communication to schools and inform schools of the testing that will be conducted at their school.

2.5.3 Administer and invigilate the tests

The Contractor will be responsible for the employment of suitably experienced invigilators with appropriate clearances (such as Working with Children checks as required by jurisdictions) who are familiar with administering secure tests. A sample of Australian schools will be provided to the Contractor by ACARA.

ACARA will seek a sample of schools from Test Administration Authorities. The device-effect study will use a randomly equivalent group design to investigate the test device DIF.

While it is likely that the majority of the sample will be drawn from metropolitan and regional schools, some remote schools will also be included in the sample. Jurisdictions will be requested to nominate schools with a good spread of student background and to ensure school participation.
Jurisdictions will be requested to identify and nominate schools that use and/or have access to all three types of devices. The planned sample for one year level is provided in the table below.

This sample size will provide a collection of 600 responses (200 for PC and 400 for combined tablet conditions) for each item in each of the test domains.

As indicated in the table, only some schools will participate in the structured interviews. Schools that do not participate in interviews will do writing tests as a second test session. This will mean that 675 students will complete one of the two writing tasks at each year level.

It is expected that each school will contribute students from the two year levels and thus the total sample size is 36 primary and 36 secondary schools across Australia.

Schools in the sample will come from metropolitan and major regional centres. The contractor is required to provide pricing options for invigilation of the study and implementation of systematic observation for the two following options:

a) a sample of schools across Australia

b) a sample of schools from three states or territories.

Structured interviews will be limited to metropolitan and major regional centres in three states or territories.

Note to Tenderers: The samples will be confirmed during project initiation, and the final sample will be provided to the Contractor. Tenderers should use the information provided as the basis for preparing their Tenders. ACARA reserves the right to alter the proposed sample.

2.5.4 Conduct systematic observation

The contractor will collect qualitative data on the interaction and engagement of students with tests administered on different devices. To that end the contractor will be required to develop and implement a protocol for the systematic observation for all administered test sessions. It is expected that the observation protocol will contain a comprehensive and well defined list of targeted behaviours and interactions that students might exhibit while responding to items on different devices. It is further expected that this list will be formed based on the outcomes of the literature review and consultation with ACARA.

The protocol should also outline the methodology for collection of the data. It is expected that a combination of event frequency recording (e.g., how often students use the onscreen calculator in numeracy tests) and time-sampling event recording (e.g., interaction of some students with a subset of test items) methods will be used. The protocols should also enable recording of interdependencies between interactions with connected items and materials including any consequences from students’ behaviours as they progress through the test (e.g., difficulty in manipulating reading prompts may affect the way a student responds to the connected items regardless of item type).

The contractor is required to present to ACARA the draft of the observation protocol for consultation and approval.

2.5.5 Conduct structured interviews

In addition, for a subset of schools, the contractor will be required to conduct structured interviews with students immediately after the test session. The interviews will be conducted with the whole class of students and will last for up to 50 minutes.

See section 2.5.3 for numbers of students required for interviews

These structured interviews will focus on students’ interaction with a sample subset of items (10 to 15 items depending on the year level) and will have all characteristics of a retrospective cognitive interview but will be done at the class level. To that end the Contractor will be required to develop the protocol, including a detailed list of questions for each of the examined items to assist implementation of structured interviews and analyses of their outcomes.

The contractor is required to present to ACARA the draft of the interview protocols for consultation and approval.

The contractor is required to employ staff suitably qualified to lead such interviews and engage with students in a productive and efficient way.

If electronically recording the interview, the Contractor will be required to obtain consent from the school. ACARA will provide a pro forma consent agreement to be used by the Contractor.

2.5.5 Analysis and reporting

The Contractor is required to:

- collect and analyse qualitative data from the systematic observations and structured interviews;
- integrate outcomes of psychometric analyses of item and testlet performance, which will be provided by ACARA, into the research summaries and report;
- provide research reports and summaries integrating literature review, and outcomes of qualitative and quantitative analyses for internal and external audiences.

2.6 Communication and evaluation

The Contractor must communicate regularly with ACARA regarding the status and details of the project and provide written status reports on request.
The Contractor selected to deliver any items above will be required to provide ACARA with a project evaluation/summary report detailing successful components of the project delivery, any obstacles encountered throughout the development and delivery phase of the project and any areas requiring improvement in the future. At any time throughout the project coordination, development/production, implementation and delivery phase, ACARA may make a request for a project status update, either in a formal format or otherwise (eg verbal). ACARA will provide a template for the project evaluation/summary report.

3. Required Contract Material
(see clause 2.1.1.b)

The Contractor will be required to:

3.1 Provide a risk management and security plan

The Contractor is required to submit a risk management and security plan, including incident management procedures and response plans, detailing how system access, security and unscheduled downtime will be managed.

3.2 Provide a literature review

3.3 Provide protocols for systematic observation and structured interviews

The Contractor is required to work with ACARA to develop a set of protocols for conducting the systematic observation and structured interviews.

3.4 Provide research summaries and reports

The Contractor is required to provide summaries and an analytical report resulting from the systematic observation and structured interviews on completion of test delivery in schools or at an alternative delivery schedule agreed to between ACARA and the Contractor.

3.5 The following list of Materials is to be developed by the Contractor under the Contract in which ACARA would retain intellectual property:

- Literature review
- Protocols for conducting observation and interviews
- Research summaries and reports.

3.6 Secure deletion of data

The contractor is required to delete data on completion of the project as specified by ACARA. ACARA will require confirmation that data has been deleted as specified.
