NAP-ICT Literacy 2014

EXAMPLE STUDENT TEST MODULE

Battle of the Bands
In the 2014 NAP-ICT Literacy assessment, each student completed four test modules. Each module could be completed in a maximum of 25 minutes (controlled by the testing software). The modules followed a linear narrative and were designed to reflect students’ typical ‘real-world’ use of ICT. The modules included a range of school-based and out-of-school-based themes.

All the modules included a series of questions that typically took less than a minute to complete. These questions were followed by more involved tasks that were completed using purpose-built software.

The Battle of the Bands module is used in this demonstration. In this module, three students formed a music band and won a talent contest and now they have been invited to enter an interstate competition. Students completing the assessment were asked to help the band by completing the online registration for the competition, promoting the band’s next gig through social media and setting up a crowd-funding web page to raise money.

Subject: Raising money

From: roodrivers@napictl.com.au

Me again!

We need to raise $1000 to go to the Battle of the Bands competition. This money will pay for our transport and accommodation. We will use the crowd-funding website, Crowded Mouse. We will offer these rewards to people who fund us.

$5 donation - You receive a digital copy of the new album.
$50 donation - Your name will appear in a song on the new album.
$100 donation - The Roo Drivers will perform an acoustic show at your house.

If you could set this up, that would be awesome!
Kay
'Crowd-funding' is a way of asking the public to make small donations to fund a cause. The public receive rewards in exchange for their donations.

You will now create a crowd-funding web page to raise money for The Roo Drivers to attend the 'Battle of the Bands' competition. Your page will be assessed on how well it persuades the public to donate money in exchange for rewards.
Welcome to Crowded Mouse

Crowded Mouse lets users create crowd-funding campaigns in 4 steps.

1. add details of campaign
2. choose a template
3. link page to social media
4. finalise page

Tips for adding an event:

Make your campaign seem exciting - people will not fund something boring. Think about your audience - use language that they can relate to. Make your page look professional - people will not give money if your page looks untrustworthy.

Complete the first 3 steps to create a crowd-funding page to help The Roo Drivers raise funds.
